A Deserter From The Army.

On January 1st a young man was arrested in this city for peddling cigars without a license. The circumstance surrounding the case seemed suspicious other than the mere fact of his selling the cigars, as he was offering them at a ridiculously low price. That he wasn't what he represented himself to be was suspicioned from the fact that he gave two names, that of Mitchell and Jones. From what he could learn from the prisoner, Sheriff Waddell concluded he was a deserter, and wrote the Adjutant General of the Army. Monday morning he received the gentleman's pedigree which fits exactly. He is, William C. Henry, deserter from Fort Morgan, Alabama, June 15, 1912.

This clipping appeared in one of the Louisville (Ky.) daily papers: "A lawyer in a courtroom may call a man a liar, a scoundrel, villain or thief, and no one makes complaint when court adjourns. If a newspaper prints such a reflection on a man's character, there is a libel suit or a dead editor. This is owing to the fact that people believe what an editor says."
